Meet Jacob!

Jacob is a kind, gentle, and incredibly empathetic young man who forms strong, meaningful relationships with those he grows to trust over time.

He shares a close bond with his foster mom and dad and values spending time with the people who make him feel safe and supported. He has a great appetite and enjoys trying almost any food. In his free time, he loves watching wrestling and football, going bowling, taking walks, and going to the movies. He is a big fan of Adam Sandler and automatically loves anyone who associates with him. One of his favorite traditions is traveling to Idaho to watch the Fourth of July celebrations, creating memories with those he cares about.

At school, he enjoys reading and likes attending school. He is compassionate, respectful, and always willing to show kindness to others. He enjoys spending time with trusted adults and peers and thrives when he feels connected to the people around him. His caring nature, willingness to try new things, and ability to build trusting relationships are some of his greatest strengths. Looking ahead, he hopes to become a professional wrestler, inspired by his love of wrestling and sports. With his determination and positive attitude, he has many qualities that will help him work toward his future goals.

He would thrive in a structured, nurturing two-parent household with a mom and a dad who can provide consistency, guidance, and encouragement. He does best with structure and routine, so he knows what is expected of him and feels most successful in an environment with clear expectations. He would benefit from having older siblings he can look up to as positive role models. A family that enjoys spending time together through activities like walks, bowling, movies, sporting events, and community celebrations would be an excellent fit. Most importantly, he needs a patient, loving family that will continue building trust, celebrate his strengths, and provide the stability and support he needs to thrive.

Jacob was born in 2012.
